Minor river flooding is probable across parts of central England today. The overall flood risk is LOW. Minor surface water and river flooding is possible but not expected for parts of England and Wales over the weekend and next week.

Specific Areas of Concern Map 1 - Friday 6 April

RISK AREA A

Impact MINOR

Likelihood MEDIUM

Source River

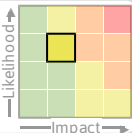

Likely duration 1 Day

Impacts limited to downstream of Worcester.

RISK AREA B

Impact MINOR

Likelihood MEDIUM

Source River

Likely duration 1 Day

Minor impacts continue on the River Thames today.

Assessment of flood risk

Rivers

The river flood risk is LOW.

Ongoing minor river flooding impacts are probable today (Friday) in Areas A and B of Specific Areas of Concern Map 1 as rivers remain high following recent heavy rain.

Further heavy rain or thundery showers are expected across England and Wales over the weekend and into next week and localised minor river flooding impacts are possible but not expected.

Surface water

The surface water flood risk is VERY LOW for the next five days.

Heavy rain or thundery showers are expected across England and Wales over the weekend and into next week and localised minor surface water flooding impacts are possible but not expected.

Groundwater

The groundwater flood risk is VERY LOW for the next five days.

Groundwater levels are currently high across parts of Dorset and may continue to rise over the coming days, however impacts are expected to be minimal.

Coastal/Tidal

The coastal flood risk is VERY LOW for the next five days.
