Assessment of flood risk

Rivers

The overall river flood risk is HIGH.

Severe river flooding impacts are expected along parts of the River Severn today (Wednesday) and overtopping of flood defences remains a risk through Ironbridge and Bewdley.

Ongoing significant impacts are possible through to Sunday on the River Severn. Further rain on Friday into Saturday may lead to another rise in river levels, however these are not currently expected to be as high as those through yesterday and today.

Significant river flooding impacts are possible for parts of Yorkshire through the next five days and along parts of the River Trent today (Wednesday).

Minor river flooding impacts are then probable from later Friday and on Saturday across the north-west of England, and are possible more widely across north England and Wales into Sunday, due to further rain.

Groundwater

The groundwater flood risk is LOW for the next five days.

Minor groundwater flooding impacts are expected in parts of the south of England for at least the next five days. Groundwater levels also remain high in parts of North Lincolnshire, although impacts are currently minimal here.

Surface water

The overall surface water flood risk is LOW.

Minor surface water flooding impacts are probable for the north-west of England and parts of Wales from Friday afternoon into Saturday morning, and are possible more widely across the north England and Wales, due to spells of heavy rain. Further heavy rain on Sunday may again lead to minor impacts from surface water flooding in some of these areas.

Coastal/Tidal

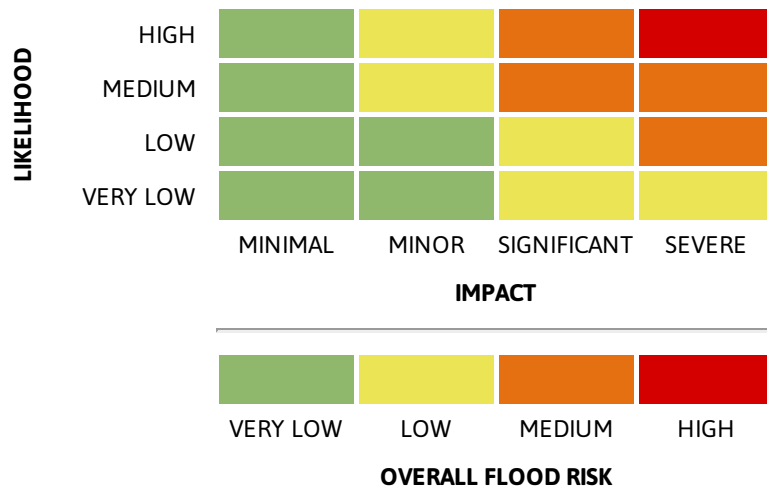

The coastal/tidal flood risk is VERY LOW for the next five days.

Large waves and gales will affect some coasts at times but only minimal impacts are expected.

6-10 day forecast

Further rain across the top of the River Severn catchment on Friday into Saturday may lead to further flooding impacts. Impacts likely to last into the first week of March. Remaining unsettled thereafter.
